NEHA Training – Who We Are & What We Do

NEHA Training is the Regulator's Choice™ for food safety education and training. We are a limited-liability corporation established as a partnership between the National Environmental Health Association (NEHA) and the Chadwick House Group Limited. In our pursuit to protect public health, we publish high-quality food safety education materials tailored specifically for food managers and food handlers. In addition, we have a network of highly qualified registered trainers spread throughout the globe that provide food safety training to individuals and food service establishments.

How is NEHA Training different from other training providers?

- We provide low-cost training materials which enable and encourage the food service industry to engage in more frequent trainings.
- Our books teach all the essential microbiological and technical food safety principles in ways that are easy to read and understand.
- Our interactive materials make it easy for individuals to remember food safety principles long after training has taken place.
- Our food manager book successfully prepares individuals to pass ANY of the three nationally accredited certification exams accredited by the Conference for Food Protection – American National Standards Institute.
- We formed a global network of highly qualified trainers, and require them to meet more stringent qualification standards than other food safety training providers in the United States.
- Through our parent company, NEHA, we have access to in-depth environmental health resources including food safety experts, epidemiology resources, and the most advanced research in the field.
